

Songxuan Zhou Niemtow, M.D.

United States Air Force Acupuncture and Integrative Medicine Center
Joint Base Andrews, Maryland
USA

E-mail: songxuanzhou@gmail.com

Songxuan Zhou Niemtow, MD (China), LAc is a graduate of the Yunnan University of Traditional Chinese Medicine in Kunming City, China in 2004 receiving her Bachelor of Medicine. Dr. Zhou Niemtow had additional training in acupuncture and Traditional Chinese Medicine in Yunnan Hospital, Yunnan Province and Beijing Dazhongsi Hospital, Beijing. She spent 5 years in private practice in Beijing. She is licensed in Maryland as a LAc. From August 2017 to current serves as a staff acupuncturist at the United States Air Force Acupuncture and Integrative Medicine Center, Joint Base Andrews. Dr. Zhou Niemtow served as a translator and consultant during the 2013, 2014, and 2016 Sino-American Military Acupuncture Meetings both in the United States and in Beijing. As a Guest Editor for Medical Acupuncture, she was responsible for two special editions of the journal during 2020 and 2019 respectively: 1. Acupuncture, Internal Medicine, Covid-19; 2. Acupuncture to Foster Health Promotion and Disease Prevention. She has several articles that are in process for publication dealing with Acupuncture and Medical Magnets and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. Dr. Zhou Niemtow is currently a Co-Principal Investigator of a US Air Force PTSD acupuncture clinical trial that has two performance sites. Assisted in an electroacupuncture technique for treating post COVID-19 loss of smell and /or taste.